INTRODUCTION

Reading your manuscript was very moving emotionally, awesome in its imagery and overwhelming spiritually.

Your story is one of belief and non-belief, anger and love, compassion and fear. In it the duality of life is expressed in the life choices and decisions made by all who seek the lessons of the Creator.

Well done.

Chief Phil Crazy Bull
Lakota Nation Ancestral Chief and Medicine Man

To my husband Ron and son Christopher whose loving support and advice filled the void and lifted my spirits.

To Chief Phil Crazy Bull of the Lakota Nation. His teachings of the Native American culture and ceremonies opened my mind and heart to a greater spiritual awareness of life and death. To our spiritual community of friends for the support and encouragement throughout this journey.

To Michelle, shaman practitioner Deborah, spiritual advisor, and Colleen, Reiki practitioner. Thanks to Bev, a special friend who helped me rediscover aspects of myself which provided me with inner strength and guidance.

To Ianne and Elyse for their support and encouragement in getting this book published.

Special thanks to my daughter Sharon who helped me see everlasting life beyond the physical realm.

As The Eagle Cries

Let My Spirit dance
With the sun and moon
In the Time of the Winter Sky
Let My Spirit sing with the wind on high
As the Eagle soars and cries
Let me dance the dance of a soul set free
On a night when the shadows watch
And as I dance this spirit dance
Take my hand and dance with me

Smile with me and then I'll go
Into the nighttime sky
Flying high with the stars and moon
With the Eagle as my guide...
The dance on earth is a dance that's done
My spirit now set free
To dance a new dance
In the skies above
While the Eagle smiles at me...
