Overview

Grunwald Magnusson was always a lonely person, ever since childhood where he struggled to understand people. People were his antagonists. People were always interfering in his life. Why did his father give him this ridiculous name and leave him when he was only five years old? Only his father could tell him what to do with his life. He left him a coded message which took Grun months to decipher. The message was locked in a cabinet under the mirror which Grun was always frightened to look into. It had runic symbols running around it. His mother had given Grun the key when he turned twenty one. Grun had found another key in the cabinet and a letter. The letter was from his father. It said he must begin the quest? After much work Grun finally managed to find the hidden box. Why didn't his mother know anything about it, or anything relevant about his father? All she said was she was told by Grun's father never to sell the house and to give him the key.

Grun was on the threshold of something which would alter his life forever. The box which was buried in the outhouse under the floor contained an assortment of things. It would take Grun three years to even begin to understand them. The main thing was the book.

After another three months of decoding he found the second letter hidden behind the fitted bookshelf. The letter said that he should stand in front of the mirror at a certain time and he would be given certain powers!

The time was the spring equinox. Grun stood in front of the mirror at twelve o'clock. He meditated for several minutes with his eyes closed. When he opened them he could see a man writing a message on the inside of the mirror. He knew this man to be his father.

Grun had copied the message which remained for ten minutes after his father disappeared. Grun was disappointed at not being able to talk with his father but he knew that his father had Grun's welfare at heart. Grun started to practice the exercises which were given him. The details are too secret to reveal here.

Scene Fifteen: House of fire

Grun is now awake and knows that the S.A.S is going to storm his house at 4.30 in the morning. It is now 3.30 and everything is quiet. The house is illuminated by a series of searchlights. Marksmen are in place, and Grun has to be careful of going near the windows, not because he might be hit, but because he knows that whoever shoots at the house it will be killed, as the bullet will rebound back. Grun wished he could tell the authorities about the dragon, but knows he can not. The responsibility is not his; it was his father who brought the dragon here and not Grun. All he can do is let karma take effect. Grun decides to meditate for a while, but as he is starting to get deeper into it, he was brought back with a jolt, as he hears a scream at the rear of the house. He doesn't need to look out, as he knows what has happened; a reporter has taken it upon himself, to try and get into the house. The dragon has hit him with fire. He is rolling about on the floor and the police are now on the spot. The reporter is inside the invisible line and the police are deciding whether to risk pulling him back; they decided to risk it, and the dragon strikes again, two policemen are blown clear of the garden, and are on fire. The reporter is now dead, and the other policeman runs for his life. Grun feels sick and weary.

The S.A.S are now at the local airfield and getting ready to board the large helicopter which will bring them to their fate, they will have done all the usual preparations and scanned the house and grounds, but in vain. The photos and night sights, will show nothing of consequence, and the news of the reporter will have baffled them. Grun knows that the house is not only protected from the floor, but all around the structure, including the roof.

The initiation which Grun has accepted in the dream state, has also given him this same protection; he has placed the dragon coin in a special holder, and it is now around his neck. Anyone trying to assault him, will be quickly dealt with.

It is now nearly 4.30. Grun has decided to sit tight, and let them do as they may. He can hear the helicopter nearing the area.

S.A.S team member one:

What do you think killed the reporter?

S.A.S. team member two:

It must be some sort of bomb.

S.A.S team member one:

But they didn't find any pieces of shrapnel.

S.A.S team leader:

Just do as we arranged, the special device we installed on the chopper will smash a bloody big hole in the roof, and all we have to do is throw in half a dozen grenades. The rest will be a piece of cake.

S.A.S. team member two:

I hope they photograph it; I want my girlfriend to see it.

S.A.S team leader:

Of course, they'll photograph it; the press is all around the place. OK get ready.

The helicopter approaches the house; it has a big metal ram hanging underneath, when it is released it will smash through the roof allowing the team to abseil down and enter the roof to throw in the grenades.

The ram is released it reaches within a yard of the roof and then explodes in fire, sending it back up and into the underside of the helicopter, which lurches to the right. The blades of the helicopter hit a tree, and two of the team members are thrown out; one is killed and one is badly injured. The helicopter crashes down besides the house and is partly within the invisible line. Members of the team and the crew are trying to exit before it explodes, but the dragon strikes again. A ball of flame engulfs the helicopter which then explodes in an almighty blast, as the fuel ignites. No one survives.

Grun is sat with his head in his hands, and is praying.

Scene sixteen: Police Headquarters

Chief Constable:

What the hell happened over there?

Chief Superintendent Barton:

We don't know, sir, it should have been an easy job.

Chief Constable:

What about the photos? What do they show?

Chief Superintendent Barton:

It is unbelievable, sir, they didn't come out.

Chief Constable:

What? How many people were photographing it?

Chief Superintendent Barton:

Perhaps inspector Jackson can explain it better, sir.

Inspector Jackson;

There were six official people recording the event for us, sir, not one of them has any trace of photos or recordings. We can't understand it.
