Moby Dick

1. Loomings.................................................................................................................................... 8
2. The Carpet-Bag....................................................................................................................... 12
3. The Spouter-Inn...................................................................................................................... 15
4. The Counterpane .................................................................................................................... 26
5. Breakfast.................................................................................................................................. 29
6. The Street................................................................................................................................. 31
7. The Chapel............................................................................................................................... 33
8. The Pulpit ............................................................................................................................... 35
9. The Sermon ............................................................................................................................ 37
10. A Bosom Friend .................................................................................................................. 43
11. Nightgown............................................................................................................................ 46
12. Biographical ......................................................................................................................... 48
13. Wheelbarrow......................................................................................................................... 50
14. Nantucket ............................................................................................................................. 54
15. Chowder............................................................................................................................... 56
16. The Ship ............................................................................................................................... 59
17. The Ramadan ....................................................................................................................... 70
18. His Mark............................................................................................................................... 75
19. The Prophet ........................................................................................................................ 78
20. All Astir ............................................................................................................................... 81
21. Going Aboard ...................................................................................................................... 83
22. Merry Christmas............................................................................................................... 86
23. The Lee Shore...................................................................................................................... 90
24. The Advocate......................................................................................................................... 91
25. Postscript ............................................................................................................................... 95
26. Knights and Squires.............................................................................................................. 96
27. Knights and Squires.............................................................................................................. 99
28. Ahab ..................................................................................................................................... 102
29. Enter Ahab; to Him, Stubb................................................................................................ 105
30. The Pipe ............................................................................................................................... 107
31. Queen Mab .......................................................................................................................... 108
32. Cetology ............................................................................................................................... 110
33. The Specksynder................................................................................................................. 120
34. The Cabin-Table ................................................................................................................. 122
35. The Mast-Head.................................................................................................................... 126
36. The Quarter-Deck............................................................................................................... 131
37. Sunset ................................................................................................................................... 137
38. Dusk...................................................................................................................................... 138
39. First Night Watch ............................................................................................................... 139
40. Midnight, Forecastle ........................................................................................................... 140
41. Moby Dick ........................................................................................................................... 144
42. The Whiteness of The Whale ............................................................................................. 151
43. Hark! .................................................................................................................................... 158
44. The Chart............................................................................................................................. 159
45. The Affidavit ....................................................................................................................... 163
46. Surmises............................................................................................................................... 169
47. The Mat-Maker................................................................................................................... 171
48. The First Lowering ............................................................................................................. 173
49. The Hyena............................................................................................................................ 181
50. Ahab's Boat and Crew. Fedallah....................................................................................... 183
51. The Spirit-Spout.................................................................................................................. 185
52. The Albatross ...................................................................................................................... 188
53. The Gam .............................................................................................................................. 190
54. The Town-Ho's Story.......................................................................................................... 193
55. Of the Monstrous Pictures of Whales ............................................................................... 209
56. Of the Less Erroneous Pictures of Whales, and the True Pictures of Whaling Scenes 213
57. Of Whales in Paint; in Teeth; in Wood; in Sheet-Iron; in Stone; in Mountains; in Stars .................................................................................................................................................... 216
58. Brit........................................................................................................................................ 218
59. Squid .................................................................................................................................... 220
61. Stubb Kills a Whale ............................................................................................................ 225
62. The Dart............................................................................................................................... 229
63. The Crotch........................................................................................................................... 230
64. Stubb's Supper .................................................................................................................... 231
65. The Whale as a Dish ........................................................................................................... 237
66. The Shark Massacre ........................................................................................................... 239
67. Cutting In............................................................................................................................. 241
68. The Blanket ......................................................................................................................... 243
69. The Funeral ......................................................................................................................... 245
70. The Sphynx.......................................................................................................................... 246
71. The Jeroboam's Story......................................................................................................... 248
72. The Monkey-Rope............................................................................................................. 253
73. Stubb and Flask Kill a Right Whale; and Then Have a Talk Over Him....................... 257
74. The Sperm Whale's Head—Contrasted View ................................................................. 262
75. The Right Whale's Head—Contrasted View ............................................................... 265
76. The Battering-Ram ..................................................................................................... 268
77. The Great Heidelberg Tun ......................................................................................... 270
78. Cistern and Buckets ................................................................................................... 272
79. The Prairie .................................................................................................................. 275
80. The Nut ....................................................................................................................... 277
81. The Pequod Meets The Virgin ................................................................................... 279
82. The Honour and Glory of Whaling ............................................................................ 287
83. Jonah Historically Regarded ..................................................................................... 289
84. Pitchpoling ............................................................................................................... 291
85. The Fountain .............................................................................................................. 293
86. The Tail ...................................................................................................................... 297
87. The Grand Armada .................................................................................................... 301
88. Schools and Schoolmasters ....................................................................................... 310
89. Fast-Fish and Loose-Fish .......................................................................................... 313
90. Heads or Tails .......................................................................................................... 316
91. The Pequod Meets The Rose-Bud ............................................................................ 319
92. Ambergris .................................................................................................................. 325
93. The Castaway ............................................................................................................ 327
94. A Squeeze of the Hand ............................................................................................. 330
95. The Cassock .............................................................................................................. 333
96. The Try-Works ........................................................................................................... 334
97. The Lamp ................................................................................................................... 338
98. Stowing Down and Clearing Up ................................................................................. 339
124. The Needle ................................................................. 409
125. The Log and Line ............................................................ 412
126. The Life-Buoy ............................................................... 415
127. The Deck ...................................................................... 418
128. The Pequod Meets The Rachel ........................................ 420
129. The Cabin ................................................................. 423
130. The Hat ..................................................................... 425
131. The Pequod Meets The Delight ....................................... 428
132. The Symphony ............................................................ 430
133. The Chase--First Day ...................................................... 433
134. The Chase--Second Day .................................................. 440
135. The Chase--Third Day ..................................................... 447
Epilogue ............................................................................. 456
Etymology ........................................................................... 457
1. Loomings

Call me Ishmael. Some years ago--never mind how long precisely--having little or no money in my purse, and nothing particular to interest me on shore, I thought I would sail about a little and see the watery part of the world. It is a way I have of driving off the spleen and regulating the circulation. Whenever I find myself growing grim about the mouth; whenever it is a damp, drizzly November in my soul; whenever I find myself involuntarily pausing before coffin warehouses, and bringing up the rear of every funeral I meet; and especially whenever my hypos get such an upper hand of me, that it requires a strong moral principle to prevent me from deliberately stepping into the street, and methodically knocking people's hats off--then, I account it high time to get to sea as soon as I can. This is my substitute for pistol and ball. With a philosophical flourish Cato throws himself upon his sword; I quietly take to the ship. There is nothing surprising in this. If they but knew it, almost all men in their degree, some time or other, cherish very nearly the same feelings towards the ocean with me.

There now is your insular city of the Manhattoes, belted round by wharves as Indian isles by coral reefs--commerce surrounds it with her surf. Right and left, the streets take you waterward. Its extreme downtown is the battery, where that noble mole is washed by waves, and cooled by breezes, which a few hours previous were out of sight of land. Look at the crowds of water-gazers there.

Circumambulate the city of a dreamy Sabbath afternoon. Go from Corlears Hook to Coenties Slip, and from thence, by Whitehall, northward. What do you see?--Posted like silent sentinels all around the town, stand thousands upon thousands of mortal men fixed in ocean reveries. Some leaning against the spiles; some seated upon the pier-heads; some looking over the bulwarks of ships from China; some high aloft in the rigging, as if striving to get a still better seaward peep. But these are all landsmen; of week days pent up in lath and plaster--tied to counters, nailed to benches, clinched to desks. How then is this? Are the green fields gone? What do they here?

But look! here come more crowds, pacing straight for the water, and seemingly bound for a dive. Strange! Nothing will content them but the extremest limit of the land; loitering under the shady lee of yonder warehouses will not suffice. No. They must get just as nigh the water as they possibly can without falling in. And there they stand--miles of them--leagues. Inlanders all, they come from lanes and alleys, streets and avenues--north, east, south, and west. Yet here they all unite. Tell me, does the magnetic virtue of the needles of the compasses of all those ships attract them thither?

Once more. Say you are in the country; in some high land of lakes. Take almost any path you please, and ten to one it carries you down in a dale, and leaves you there by a pool in the stream. There is magic in it. Let the most absent-minded of men be plunged in his deepest reveries--stand that man on his legs, set his feet a-going, and he will infallibly lead you to water, if water there be in all that region. Should you ever be athirst in the great American desert, try this experiment, if your caravan happen to be supplied with a metaphysical professor. Yes, as every one knows, meditation and water are wedded for ever.

But here is an artist. He desires to paint you the dreamiest, shadiest, quietest, most enchanting bit of romantic landscape in all the valley of the Saco. What is the chief element he employs? There stand his trees, each with a hollow trunk, as if a hermit and a crucifix were within; and here sleeps his meadow, and there sleep his cattle; and up from yonder cottage goes a sleepy smoke. Deep into distant woodlands winds a mazy way, reaching to overlapping spurs of mountains bathed in their hill-side blue. But though the picture lies thus tranced, and though this pine-tree shakes down its sighs like leaves upon this shepherd's head, yet all were vain, unless the shepherd's eye were fixed upon the magic stream before him. Go visit the Prairies in June, when for scores on scores of miles you wade knee-deep among Tiger-lilies--what is the one charm wanting?--Water--there is not a drop of water there! Were Niagara but a cataract of sand, would you travel your thousand miles to see it? Why did the poor poet of Tennessee, upon suddenly receiving two handfuls of silver, deliberate whether to buy him a coat, which he sadly needed, or invest his money in a pedestrian trip to Rockaway Beach? Why is almost every robust healthy boy with a robust healthy soul in him, at some time or other crazy to go to sea? Why upon your first voyage as a passenger, did you yourself feel such a mystical vibration, when first told that you and your ship were now out of sight of land? Why did the old Persians hold the sea holy? Why did the Greeks give it a separate deity, and own brother of Jove? Surely all this is not without meaning. And still deeper the meaning of that story of Narcissus, who because he could not grasp the tormenting, mild image he saw in the fountain, plunged into it and was drowned. But that same image, we ourselves see in all rivers and oceans. It is the image of the ungraspable phantom of life; and this is the key to it all.

Now, when I say that I am in the habit of going to sea whenever I begin to grow hazy about the eyes, and begin to be over conscious of my lungs, I do not mean to have it inferred that I ever go to sea as a passenger. For to go as a passenger you must needs have a purse, and a purse is but a rag unless you have something in it. Besides, passengers get sea-sick--grow quarrelsome--don't sleep of nights--do not enjoy themselves much, as a general thing;--no, I never go as a passenger; nor, though I am something of a salt, do I ever go to sea as a Commodore, or a Captain, or a Cook. I abandon the glory and distinction of such offices to those who like them. For my part, I abominate all honourable respectable toils, trials, and tribulations of every kind whatsoever. It is quite as much as I can do to take care of myself, without taking care of ships, barques, brigs, schooners, and what not. And as for going as cook,--though I confess there is considerable glory in that, a cook being a sort of officer on ship-board--yet, somehow, I never fancied broiling fowls;--though once broiled, judiciously buttered, and judgmatically salted and peppered, there is no one who will speak more respectfully, not to say reverentially, of a broiled fowl than I will. It is out of the idolatrous dotings of the old Egyptians upon broiled ibis and roasted river horse, that you see the mummies of those creatures in their huge bake-houses the pyramids.
No, when I go to sea, I go as a simple sailor, right before the mast, plumb down into the forecastle, aloft there to the royal mast-head. True, they rather order me about some, and make me jump from spar to spar, like a grasshopper in a May meadow. And at first, this sort of thing is unpleasant enough. It touches one’s sense of honour, particularly if you come of an old established family in the land, the Van Rensselaers, or Randolphs, or Hardicanutes. And more than all, if just previous to putting your hand into the tar-pot, you have been lording it as a country schoolmaster, making the tallest boys stand in awe of you. The transition is a keen one, I assure you, from a schoolmaster to a sailor, and requires a strong decoction of Seneca and the Stoics to enable you to grin and bear it. But even this wears off in time.

What of it, if some old hunks of a sea-captain orders me to get a broom and sweep down the decks? What does that indignity amount to, weighed, I mean, in the scales of the New Testament? Do you think the archangel Gabriel thinks anything the less of me, because I promptly and respectfully obey that old hunks in that particular instance? Who ain't a slave? Tell me that. Well, then, however the old sea-captains may order me about--however they may thump and punch me about, I have the satisfaction of knowing that it is all right; that everybody else is one way or other served in much the same way--either in a physical or metaphysical point of view, that is; and so the universal thump is passed round, and all hands should rub each other's shoulder-blades, and be content.

Again, I always go to sea as a sailor, because they make a point of paying me for my trouble, whereas they never pay passengers a single penny that I ever heard of. On the contrary, passengers themselves must pay. And there is all the difference in the world between paying and being paid. The act of paying is perhaps the most uncomfortable infliction that the two orchard thieves entailed upon us. But BEING PAID,—what will compare with it? The urbane activity with which a man receives money is really marvellous, considering that we so earnestly believe money to be the root of all earthly ills, and that on no account can a monied man enter heaven. Ah! how cheerfully we consign ourselves to perdition!

Finally, I always go to sea as a sailor, because of the wholesome exercise and pure air of the fore-castle deck. For as in this world, head winds are far more prevalent than winds from astern (that is, if you never violate the Pythagorean maxim), so for the most part the Commodore on the quarter-deck gets his atmosphere at second hand from the sailors on the forecastle. He thinks he breathes it first; but not so. In much the same way do the commonalty lead their leaders in many other things, at the same time that the leaders little suspect it. But wherefore it was that after having repeatedly smelt the sea as a merchant sailor, I should now take it into my head to go on a whaling voyage; this the invisible police officer of the Fates, who has the constant surveillance of me, and secretly dogs me, and influences me in some unaccountable way—he can better answer than any one else. And, doubtless, my going on this whaling voyage, formed part of the grand programme of Providence that was drawn up a long time ago. It came in as a sort of brief interlude and solo between more extensive performances. I take it that this part of the bill must have run something like this:
Thank You for previewing this eBook

You can read the full version of this eBook in different formats:

- HTML (Free /Available to everyone)

- PDF / TXT (Available to V.I.P. members. Free Standard members can access up to 5 PDF/TXT eBooks per month each month)

- Epub & Mobipocket (Exclusive to V.I.P. members)

To download this full book, simply select the format you desire below