MR. NOGO has been induced to publish the following random sketches, by the favour with which they were received in the pages of the Sporting Magazine.

That they are but an unconnected series of scenes and occurrences, usually resulting in his own discomfiture and disappointment, he is obliged in common candour to confess. That a simple relation of such untoward facts may deter others from follies to which they have no inclination, and efforts of which they are physically incapable, is the earnest hope of a disgusted individual, whose only claim to consideration is his invariable prominence as

AN UNSUCCESSFUL MAN.
