*Eighties legend Billy Ocean
will play Glasgow's Kelvingrove Bandstand in June as part of the West End Festival Fiesta.*

Many of our favorite artists just lost their inspiration.. Many of our friends and families just lost their idol. Heaven gained a man that was taken from us too soon, but left a place that will forever celebrate his legend. Rest in peace, Prince. It was not just doves crying on April 21.

This month, I wanted to turn this page into a memorial for our fallen musical artists this year. There have been much too many within only four months, but it sparked messages of universal loss, love and belonging from people all around the world on social media and in performances as tributes. I've seen brands, celebrities, friends, family members, etc., share pictures, quotes, stories, videos, graphic designs and more in print and online in memory of people that once had us dancing, laughing and singing. It is funny how life works, one day we are watching Prince performing at the 2007 Superbowl XLI in the pouring rain, and watching the entire stadium singing along to "Purple Rain." Another day, Chevrolet is sharing an ad in tribute to Prince's life, with the words "Baby, that was much too fast."

This makes me think, who is it in our generation that will be the legends that people across the world remember and pay tribute to? Who is innovating music, daring to be different, weaving in themes and making parties? This, I have yet to find a distinct answer. I can think of people in the present who are fun, and are creating new and catchy music, but it is honestly hard to tell who will stick around for the many years to come. With the countless demographics of people throughout the world, how can we find an artist that can create a lasting impression like Prince, David Bowie, Whitney Houston, and Glenn Frey made? (And yes, I know Whitney did not pass this year, but she should be included in that list).

If you have any ideas, any true and real ideas, let us know! I'm stumped.

SEE THROUGH SOUND

On 14 October 2016 we are encouraged to forget what we see and take in the sounds all around us. The Royal National Institute of Blind People has launched the event to give the audience a brief insight into living with sight loss and raise funds.

The inaugural 'SEE THROUGH SOUND' concert, which will take place at Cadogan Hall in London, will bring together some of the UK's most promising breakthrough acts, including Andy Jordan, alongside established artists for an evening of live music in support of the RNIB. This very special event will feature artists from a range of musical genres and to accompany the fantastic auditory experience audience members will be given 'sim specs' to wear during the concert.

"We're delighted to launch the RNIB See Through Sound music event which aims to both entertain and educate music fans and provide them with the opportunity to experience live music in a whole new way. We're excited about the main event coming up in October which will support us in achieving our goal of making every day better for the 2 million people living with sight loss across the UK." Wanda Hamilton, Group Director of Fundraising at RNIB

Scouting For Girls To Headline British Heart Foundation Fundraiser

In memory of Emma Gibson, 'EmFest' will take place Friday 27 May in Long Hanborough playing fields, Oxfordshire. Having sadly passed away due to a coronary heart disease, she had joked of asking the band to play in the village. Thus her closest friends decided to pay tribute to Emma with this festival in her village with her favourite band, and to also help raise funds for the British Heart Foundation.

"Sadly, heart disease can affect anyone at any time in their lives. We're proud to join the BHF's fight for every heartbeat. We would like to thank the EmFest committee for inviting us to be involved in their amazing fundraiser." Roy Stride, Scouting for Girls frontman.

Coronary heart disease remains the UK's single biggest killer taking 70,000 people away from their families each year. Through the public's generosity, the BHF will fund half a billion pounds of new research over the next five years which will be central to discovering vital treatments for people living with heart and circulatory conditions.

"We're delighted to have Scouting for Girls on board to support the BHF at EmFest and are incredibly grateful to the organisers for their enormous generosity. It promises to be an incredible event raising funds and awareness in the fight against heart disease." Clare Cassidy, BHF Head of Community Fundraising in the South

We work, work, work in hope that we would one day be presented with an opportunity to finally live the life we have always imagined. We exhaust ourselves, we run on energy drinks, we have sleepless nights... We break down, burn out and fall into depression.

What about self care?

How about balancing our commitments and maintaining a healthy body, mind and spirit?

It's no wonder why our efforts are never good enough no matter how hard we try.

We had just overlooked the skill of happiness.

When we love and take care of ourselves, we would be able to find success.

It is WITHIN us.

Being healthy influences positive experiences in other areas of our lives.

Law of attraction. Simple as that.

Remember to feed your body, mind and spirit with the food it needs and you WILL grow in happiness.

Start with YOU.
