Hi Guys & Dolls...

DJ and Producer Paul Darey is on our cover this month with a stylish mosaic design, whilst the back cover takes the white backing of the image. We welcome Tamara as our new Brand Ambassador, she has shown us lots of support and we are excited to have her with our team. A congratulatory note to Right Chord Music who hosted a brilliant Facebook Live festival, they introduced us to so many really great artists all over the world. We're also super excited to announce the start of September Sofa Sessions with Leanne Louise, live every weekend of this month live from our Facebook page. My current favourite track is the sweet tones of 'Either Way' by Snakehips & Anne-Marie ft Joey Bada$$.

In this issue Steve shares praise to music with an ode. Every single melody you've brought to my ears, hiding away my tears. Jessie has a dose of passion telling of her experience with dating together with a trio of love songs. My heart was pounding. Coldplay's A Head Full Of Dreams Tour was a whirlwind, Sarah and Ashley fight their way into the third row and give us the highlights. The universe runs on an a rhythm. I love this notion, read my review of Terry Pratchett's 'Soul Music' which really empowers creative minds to rebel. Music is the soundtrack of our lives. Tech-house artist Paul Darey is in our hotseat and tells us about his life immersed in the world of clubbing. They all played her songs, gave their life to her, and hers to them. The story of her final moments, this piano which has live a long and good life of music. We've got your festival guide, radio listings and music from Danny Blaze, Daniel Wanrooy, Leah Lost, Funk D'Void and C4.

I know that one thing
That changes everything
I love how I feel
When it is real
When the beat mixes with mine
When darkness is undermined
How joy explodes within
The feel good factor is blasting
With you by my side
I know it's gonna be alright
Every single melody you've brought to my ears
Hiding away my tears
For the joys that filled my heart
For the love down within that keeps growing
Thank you
Music!

Fate and Feelings

It's been nearly a year since my last article due to severe writers block however, unexpectedly, I have found my inspiration again.

Appropriately named, this describes my current situation.

Obviously, as always, no names will be mentioned due to people's privacy I hope you enjoy the read.

People spend their whole life actively searching for 'The One'. Whether they go on 10+ dates a month or sign up to dating websites such as the most popular Tinder or Plenty Of Fish in the hopes they will match with someone, meet, fall in love and be a picture of perfection for years to come.

However most of the time you get endless messages off people who don't spark your soul, or make you want to engage in conversation with them.

We simply scroll through endless profiles, reading the words on a screen judging people based on how they describe themselves, and simply choose whether we send them a message.

It can be a brutal experience for some, people can hide behind a screen. It's very easy to write a bio about yourself which is simply not true, post a few pictures edited to the max and hey presto we have portrayed ourselves to be someone we aren't, in most cases this is true.

However on a very rare occasion you will receive a message and that person will captivate your interest with the first few lines of words written and you will message back.

The conversation will just flow so easy between you both the words come to you with no effort needed and you will talk for hours on end.

You realise you have similarities, common interests, despite coming from different backgrounds and you just click.

You may question it at first thinking to yourself "This is too good to be true". You will over think, analyse and sometimes panic and of course that's normal.

It's not often you meet people and connect on a deeper level than just lust and when you do it can be overwhelming, intense, and scary but at the same time it can be amazing.

People will often judge others when they ask "How did you meet?" And that's okay.

To me, meeting someone on a dating website is no different to meeting someone in a bar or a coffee shop.

It doesn't matter how or where you meet someone. The fact of the matter is you have met them, they have entered your life when you least expected it and made you realise honest, nice people do exist.

I am a firm believer in fate I believe we all meet people when we aren't looking and that's the best way.

That person blows away any fears you once had about people, and feelings making you realise it's okay to feel, it's not going to ruin your life like you once thought.

It may of been in the past you've developed feelings for someone who didn't appreciate how you felt at the time and that can leave you feeling quite empty, lost and often looking like a fool.

However this person does the opposite and makes you feel wanted, respected and needed - a feeling you're not used to.

My advice to anyone who has been lucky enough to find this person is to hold onto them with both hands and don't let go because they don't come around often.

Embrace how scary it feels and take a risk, you never know it may pay off.

You don't want to look back in ten years time laying next to someone you settled for thinking "I wonder what that person is doing?"

Pursue what's making you smile on a daily basis and, you never know, they may just be the one.

Carpe Diem.

We are proud to announce that the September Sofa Sessions will be streamed every weekend of the month live from our Facebook page. Singer Leanne Louise and various musicians will perform in fan's living rooms who have been chosen out of a hat. These unique sessions will purely be for enjoyment and giving back to the supporters.

"My aims are really simple - to have fun and give back to the people who've supported my music. It's to have fun, to travel, to do something different. I've been gigging for years (and years and years...), it's to do something different and also to give people a chance to hear music of mine that they might not have heard yet because it's not released. So, it's a thank you and just to have fun." Leanne Louise

Coldplay: A Head Full of Dreams Tour at Soldier Field, Chicago on 17th August 2017

I cannot believe what you are about to read actually happened.

There are few acts in the music industry that can sell out a stadium. Some past acts in Chicago that sold out Soldier Field have been: Grateful Dead, Kenny Chesney, Taylor Swift, One Direction, Beyoncé, U2, and Coldplay. Let me tell you a story about the most recent Coldplay concert in Chicago.

About a week ago, I was starry-eyed sitting in the nosebleed section at Coldplay's Head Full of Dreams Tour in Chicago. My friend Ashley and I were excited and ready for the show, even though we were very high up. We decided to walk around to look at merchandise, and realized that the shirts were too expensive for our price range, even though we really wanted to buy one, especially because it was our first Coldplay concert.

Suddenly, we saw a roadie walking around scoping the crowd. He looked like he was on a mission, but I decided to go up to him anyways to ask for a discount on a t-shirt. He explained to us that the merchandise is what pays the bills of the crew, so that is why they are so expensive. We told him we understood but it was unfortunate because it was our first time seeing Coldplay and we wanted to remember the day. Then, the following dialogue happened.

Roadie: "Oh, it's your first time seeing them? Are you two big fans?"

Ashley and I: "Oh my gosh yes. We've been huge fans and
