Biter's Fishing Trip

One day a rabbit called Hopper went to see his friend, Biter the Ant.

When he got to his friends house, Hopper could not believe his eyes!

Biter the Ant had gone!
He was not at home! He had gone on their special fishing day! How could this be true?

Biter had been to the shops and came home. But first he went to Hopper's house! When he came back to his own house he opened the door to see Hopper.

“I went over to your house!” said Biter.

“I came over to yours!”
laughed Hopper. There had been a bad mix up!
Biter looked at the time...
It was too late! Both of them knew what this meant...

No fishing!

Biter and the Apple

One day Biter the Ant went outside because the postman was there. Paul the postman had a large parcel for Biter. When Biter looked at the parcel,
he saw it was a big apple!
Biter loved apples!

There was a label attached to the apple and it said:

“To Biter, love Mum xxx”

It was from his mum! He hadn't seen her in ages! “Wow,” shouted Biter, “this is the biggest apple I have ever seen! I will chop it into small slices so I can eat it!” The postman left Biter and his apple with a big smile on his face.

Five minutes later when Biter came back outside the apple had been eaten! “Not my apple, no!” screamed Biter as he started to cry. He noticed that the label was still there but attached to the stalk.

Later on that day Hopper came round to Biter's house. He saw that Biter was crying.

"Are you okay Biter?" asked Hopper.

"No! Someone ate my huge apple from my mum!" cried Biter.

Just then Paul the postman came back to the door with an even bigger parcel.

“I’m sorry for eating your apple Biter. I should not have done it so I bought you present.” Said Paul as he gave Biter an even bigger apple!

“Thank you,” Biter said, “I forgive you. Let’s all share this apple!”
And so Hopper, Paul and Biter all sat down and enjoyed eating the even bigger apple!
