Introduction

Throughout human history, many were those who have enlightened mankind with the truth, and guided, each one in a special way, the rest of the world, toward a more joyful and prosperous way of living. While some are still remembered, most have been forgotten, and remain unknown to the masses, who in the darkness, ignore the fact that they may not even have access to a vast amount of knowledge during an entire lifetime, knowledge which has been segregated into small libraries, or very exclusive groups, most of them very selective in what regards the members they wish to allow access to such high knowledge. And so, the masses remain ignorant and imbecile as they ever were, starved for wisdom they neglect as much as they ridicule.

It was with this in mind, that the author has been collecting what he considers to be the most profound, clear and powerful quotes put on paper. In this book, you have access to the core of human wisdom, the most empowering quotations, resuming thousands of years of the most high wisdom present on planet Earth.

May this book be as a powerful medicine for your soul. And may you share it with others, so that more people can have the opportunity to free themselves from the boundaries of ignorance. For the more the world evolves, and the faster it does, the less evil will be present on the planet, as there is no such thing as evil amongst those who possess the truth of all truths, the light that shines on this world through the minds of the wise that either live or have lived here. These quotes set the beginning of a journey to an unknown territory, and may you never be the same after reading them. Repeat the reading as much as you can and may you grow in intelligence and compassion as much as you grow in strength.

Quotes

1. "A culture is as rich and capable of surviving as it has imaginative artists, skilled men of science, a high ethic level, workable government, land and natural resources, in about that order of importance. The elevation of a culture can be measured directly by the numbers of its people working in the field of aesthetics. It happens, however that democracies and other forms of government are prone to overlook the role of the artist in the society. One of the greatest single moves that could be made to advance and vitalize a culture such as America would be to free, completely, the artist from all taxes and similar oppressions, and thus attract into the arts the most ambitious and able and invite them to pursue unchecked the creation of all the beauty and glory on which any culture depends if it would have material wealth."

— L. Ron Hubbard

2. "A culture is only as great as its dreams and its dreams are dreamed by artists. When the level of existence of the artist becomes impure, so becomes impure the art itself, to the deterioration of the society. Because the artist deals in future realities, he always seeks improvements or changes in the existing reality. This makes the artist, inevitably and invariably a rebel against the status quo. The artist, by postulating the new realities of the future, accomplishes peaceful revolution."

— L. Ron Hubbard

3. "A human being is a part of the whole called by us universe, a part limited in time and space. He experiences himself, his thoughts and feeling as something separated from the rest, a kind of optical delusion of his consciousness. This delusion is a kind of prison for us, restricting us to our personal desires and to affection for a few persons nearest to us. Our task must be to free ourselves from this prison by widening our circle of compassion to embrace all living creatures and the whole of nature in its beauty."

— Albert Einstein

4. "A person giving you advice isn't perfect and has his own shortcomings, but may just give you the piece that you're missing."

— Dr. Ali Al Omari

5. "A person who has difficulty in buying the labor that he wants, suffers inconvenience or the reduction of profits. The person who cannot sell his labor is in effect told that he is of no use. The first difficulty causes annoyance or loss. The second is a personal catastrophe."

— Sir William Beveridge

6. "A person who thinks all the time has nothing to think about except thoughts. So, he loses touch with reality, and lives in a world of illusions."

— Alan Watts

7. "A predominant characteristic of the behavior of those who I consider evil is the use of other people as scapegoats. Because they consider themselves above disproving, they must attack someone who disproves them. They sacrifice others in order to preserve their self-image of perfection."

— M. Scott Peck

8. "A prudent question is one-half of wisdom."

— Sir Francis Bacon

9. "A society which in any way inhibits, suppresses or regiments its artists is a society certainly doomed. And democracy, avidly taxing its powerfully creative individuals into non-production, snatches from the artist any fruits of victory and exacts an enormous penalty for the creation of any work of art. Some artists, regrettably, seek to act in their private and public lives in an intensively aberrated fashion in order to prove that they are artists. The education of this effect is such that we can commonly discover some young girl, in the field of arts, living like a prostitute in order to convince herself and her friends that she is truly artistic. Being artistic was commonly identified with being loose-moraled, wicked, idle and drunken. And the artist, to be recognized, tried to live up to this role. This feeling persists to this day and certain people often embrace the arts solely as an excuse to be promiscuous, unconventional and loose in morals. Any field which has critics galore, wherein a thousand different schools of divergent opinion can exist, where opinion is listened to with open mouths in lieu of reason by which any many can reach a conclusion, is an authoritarian field. Aesthetics, unfortunately, abounds in these critics and opinions. But a culture is only as great as its dreams, and its dreams are dreamed by artists. When the level of existence of the artist becomes impure, so becomes impure the art itself to the deterioration of the society. For if the industry and commerce and material projects of a nation are carried on the backs of a few able, desperate men, then the honor and the glory of that society is carried and enhanced by the artist."

— L. Ron Hubbard

10. "A very great vision is needed and the man who has it must follow it as the eagle seeks the deepest blue of the sky."

— Crazy Horse (Oglala Lakota Sioux)

11. "A warrior considers himself already dead, so there is nothing to lose. The worst has already happened to him, therefore he's clear and calm; judging him by his acts or by his words, one would never suspect that he has witnessed everything."

— Carlos Castañeda, PhD

12. "A wise man is like a living fire, a flame, but he cannot sell his life, he cannot serve, and he will rather die than to become a slave."

— Osho

13. "A woman being too easy and open about having sex with other guys just isn't good for establishing trust and building a relationship that lasts."

— Dan Bacon

14. "According to Pythagoras, the structure of the world is based on the consonant intervals of the octave, the fifth and the fourth. The numbers of their proportions 2:1, 3:2 and 4:3 are the 'holy diversity' of what the Pythagoreans called tetractys: 1+2+3+4=10. 'Progress from oneness to the number four and the ten emerges, the mother of all things'. Within this formula lies the entire act of creation, from the splitting of the primal element into sexual duality, its propagation into the space-forming trinity, through to its completion in the four elements. In the Cabala, the work of creation unfolds according to a similar pattern, in four steps starting with the letters of the tetragrammaton, the unpronounceable divine name. In alchemy, too, this fourfold step, the 'axiom of Maria Prophetissa', plays a leading part. The tetractys also forms the basis of the image of the cosmic soul, to whose structure in the form of a Chi (X, the 22nd letter of the Greek alphabet) Plato refers to in the Timaeus. In line with the law of the proportional division of the chord, the matrix of all earthly phenomena unfolds here as a network of coordinates of fractions and multiples."

— Alexander Roob

15. "After an inferior man has been taught a doctrine of superiority he will remain as inferior as he was before his lesson. He will merely assume himself to be superior, and attempt to employ his recently-learned tactics against his own kind, whom he will then consider his inferiors. With each inferior man enjoying what he considers his unique role, the entire bunch will be reduced to a pack of strutting, foppish, self-centered monkeys gamboling about on an island of ignorance. There they will play their games under the supervision of their keeper, who was and will always be a superior man."

— Anton LaVey

16. "All beings are born inside an illusion, deceived by the dual division that produces the feelings of desire and repulse before the things of the world. But there are human beings who only do what is due, and no longer make any mistake; they are already free from the deception produced by the duality, and worship Me with all their soul. Those who seek refuge in Me and strive, are truly liberated from time and death. Those who concentrate their mind on Me, know me on earth and in heaven as the Supreme Being. Their souls are pure and remain in harmony, and even when their time of death arrives, they see Me."

— Bhagavad Gita

17. "All entities living in the material sphere and, consequently, making use of a material body, generate earthly light force, which means that they transform the ethers which they themselves receive from the cosmic regions surrounding us."

— Jan Van Rijckenborgh

18. "All is foreseen, yet man is endowed with free will."

— Mishna, In Pirke Avot

19. "All is well. You did not come here to fix a broken world. The world is not broken. You came here to live a wonderful life. And if you can learn to relax a little and let it all in, you will begin to see the universe present you with all that you have asked for."

— Esther Hicks

20. "All the forces at man's disposal or under man's control, or subject to man's influence, are his working tools. The friendship and sympathy that knit heart to heart are a force like the attraction of cohesion, by which the sandy particles become the solid rock. If this law of attraction or cohesion were taken away, the material worlds and suns would dissolve in an instant into thin invisible vapor. If the ties of friendship, affection, and love were annulled, mankind would become a ranging multitude of wild and savage beasts of prey. The sand hardens into rock under the immense superincumbent pressure of the ocean, aided sometimes by the irresistible energy of fire; and when the pressure of calamity and danger is upon an order or a country, the members or the citizens ought to be the more closely united by the cohesion of sympathy and interdependence. Morality is a force. It is the magnetic attraction of the heart toward Truth and Virtue.”

— Albert Pike

21. “All tiredness is, is willingness gone bad. People who are willing don’t get tired. It’s only when something makes them unwilling that they become exhausted. I could have somebody enthusiastically opening doors, you know, opening doors, opening doors, opening doors, opening doors. And then all of a sudden fix it so that doors wouldn’t open. You know and they go... and all of a sudden they’re tired. So you say, 'Well, they opened doors 222 times and that made them tired.' Oh no it didn’t! They opened doors 222 times and that made them feel pretty good. But the time they didn’t find themselves able to open, the door tired them out. Not only is he unwilling to open the door, but he’s unable to do so; and he becomes exhausted.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

22. “All truths are Truths of Period, and not truths for eternity; that whatever great fact has had strength and vitality enough to make itself real, whether of religion, morals, government, or of whatever else, and to find place in this world, has been a truth for the time, and as good as men were capable of receiving.”

— Albert Pike

23. “An entrepreneur is someone who has made a conscious decision to choose freedom. This freedom doesn't come easy because being an entrepreneur isn't easy, but it will change your life in every way. Many of us spend years of our lives building someone else's dream and following someone else's rules. As entrepreneurs, we get to choose to work on the things that light us up, that motivate us, and that make a big impact for those around us. As entrepreneurs, we get to spend time with our family when we choose to, go on vacation when we choose to and surround ourselves with the people we choose to.”

— John Lee Dumas

24. “An evaluation on the level of aesthetics is not possible. You see, evaluation would take place on the level of logic. And therefore, you can't get logical about art. Beauty is an experience. It would have to do with a sensation.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

25. “An individual must rise above an avid craving for agreement from a humanoid group to get anything decent done.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

26. “Any information is valuable to the degree that you can use it.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

27. “Any knowledge of reality that isn’t animated and controlled by the paradigm of complexity is doomed to be mutilated and, in this sense, to lack realism.”

— Edgar Morin

28. "Any person that you feel very closely drawn to, concerned about, terribly interested about, and that sort of thing, falls into either of these two: either you've got a close, close wavelength harmonic going or you've known them before."

— L. Ron Hubbard

29. "As human beings, we have two states of consciousness: one is of this world, and the other is of the world beyond."

— Brihadaranyaka Upanishad

30. "As humans surrender to religion, their true spirit is reduced. On earth, charlatans have spread the lie that we came by order of Creation as angels, to bring to humans the long-sought peace, the truth, the protection and the orders of their God. That is a lie, because we have never received such orders and will never receive. Creation never gives orders. It's a law in itself, and every way of life must be conformed to it, and become part of it. Take that truth to the world."

— Semjase (Pleiadian Extraterrestrial)

31. "As important as change is, however, most people just plain don't like it. As a result, those who create change are frustrated with family members, co-workers and employees who often display amazing resistance to the changes being implemented all around them. The reason so many people appear to resist change is because they are on a different time frame than those who create the changes. What complicates the change process is the fact that not everybody is at the same place at the same time. Some people are still holding onto the past and remain stuck in the ending stage. Others are just moving into transition. And, a few may have already entered into the new beginning. Change is inevitable and a certain degree of stress is predictable. The good news, however, is that misery is optional. When individuals and organizations understand that change is a people process, and not an event on the calendar, things will go better."

— Jim Henion

32. "As long as life has the level of being a game, you can play it. But when it no longer has the level of being a game, it plays you. It's the difference between being the chess player and the pawn. And the difference between being the chess player and the pawn is playing a game on a relatively non-serious level and being all the seriousness there is—that's the pawn. The pawn is handled on the board by somebody else. The pawn is not cause. The pawn moves as it is moved by the environment, and that's all it's moved. And it's a very serious pawn."

— L. Ron Hubbard

33. "As long as one is convinced that the form in which he lives is real, it won't be possible to achieve a psychological split, it won't be possible for the inner being to separate himself from the outer being. And therefore, it won't be possible to penetrate the first level of the kingdom of the heavens."

— Samael Aun Weor

34. "As we become more conscious, we also realize the deplorable state in which we find ourselves. It is then obvious why most people are not interested and do not understand anything related to the cosmos. This is something too far for them. To the vast majority, the only thing that matters are small subjects, the satisfaction of their addictions, their passions, their personal interests, worries and selfish desires, money and greed, fornication, alcohol, etc. This is humanity. Most people are not interested in laws and principles, because it is still far from them, and not part of their small worries.”

— Samael Aun Weor

35. “At the subatomic level, future events can and do influence the past.”

— Justin Faerman

36. “Be firm, be virile, be a man and then be a saint. If God gives you the burden, God will give you the strength.”

— Saint Josemaría Escrivá

37. “Beauty has something to do with beingness. The biggest and widest canvas that you could paint would be the canvas of life. A man could actually achieve the level of being a professionally beautiful 'liver.' He could. There are some people you are glad to know simply because they seem to lead a beautiful life. It's interesting, isn't it?”

— L. Ron Hubbard

38. “Before two human beings come in close physical contact, their auras have mingled; that is the reason why we 'feel the presence of another' at times before we become aware of him by means of our ordinary senses.”

— Max Heindel

39. “Before you diagnose yourself with depression or low self-esteem, first make sure that you are not, in fact, just surrounded by assholes.”

— William Gibson

40. “Behave today as if the future were already here.”

— Blaine Barlett

41. “Belief, like fear or love, is a force to be understood as we understand the Theory of Relativity and Principles of Uncertainty: phenomenon that determine the course of our lives. Yesterday, my life was headed in one direction. Today, it is headed in another. Yesterday I believed that I would never have done what I did today. These forces that often remake time and space, that can shape and alter who we imagine ourselves to be, begin long before we are born and continue after we perish. Our lives and our choices, like quantum trajectories, are understood moment to moment. At each point of intersection, each encounter suggests a new potential direction.”

— Isaac Sachs

42. “Better to die fighting for freedom than be a prisoner all the days of your life.”

— Bob Marley

43. “Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God.”

— Matthew 5:8, In The Bible

44. "Books, to be of religious tendency in the Masonic sense, need not be books of sermons, of pious exercises, or of prayers. Whatever inculcates pure, noble, and patriotic sentiments, or touches the heart with the beauty of virtue, and the excellence of an upright life, accords with the religion of masonry, and is the gospel of literature and art. That gospel is preached from many a book and painting, from many a poem and fiction, and review and newspaper; and it is a painful error and miserable narrowness, not to recognize these widespread agencies of heaven's providing; not to see and welcome these many-handed coadjutors, to the great and good cause. The oracles of God do not speak from the pulpit alone."

— Albert Pike

45. "Candles burn out; spiritual beings don't."

— Grant Cardone

46. "Care about what other people think and you will always be their prisoner."

— Lao Tzu

47. "Chaos is what we've lost touch with. This is why it is given a bad name. It is feared by the dominant archetype of our world, which is Ego, which clenches because its existence is defined in terms of control."

— Terence McKenna

48. "Compassion hurts. When you feel connected to everything, you also feel responsible for everything. You can not turn away. Your destiny is bound to the destinies of others. You must either learn to carry the universe or be crushed by it. You must grow strong enough to love the world, yet, empty enough to sit down at the same table with its worst horrors."

— Andrew Boyd

49. "Concentrate, focus and use power, but always remember balance."

— Kesuke Miyagi

50. "Confrontingness is awareness. One can be aware of those things which he is willing in some way to confront. One, if he is willing—even to some slight degree—willing to confront something, he can become aware of it. But if he cannot confront it and will not confront it and has an idea that he must not confront it, it after a while disappears entirely from view and he is no longer able to be aware of it. And in that is contained IQ, ability, talent and all other such factors."

— L. Ron Hubbard

51. "Confusion is uncertainty. Confusion is stupidity. Confusion is insecurity. When you think of uncertainty, stupidity and insecurity, think of confusion and you'll have it down pat. What, then, is certainty? Lack of confusion. What, then, is intelligence? Ability to handle confusion. What, then, is security? The ability to go through or around or to bring order to confusion. Certainty, intelligence and security are lack of or ability to handle confusion. How does luck fit into confusion? Luck is the hope that some uncontrolled chance will get one through. Counting on luck is an abandonment of control. That's apathy."

— L. Ron Hubbard

52. "Consider an empty jar. People might talk about 'the space inside the jar'; and this expression seems to suggest that the space inside the jar is separated from other space. In the same way a person may talk about 'my soul'; and this expression seems to suggest that the soul within an individual is separated from the soul within other individuals - and hence separate from God. In truth the space within an empty jar is the same as space elsewhere; there is simply space. And the soul within one individual is the same as the soul within another; there is simply soul - which is God." — Sankara

53. "Courage could be summed up in: one, being willing to cause something; and two, going ahead to achieve the effect one has postulated against any and all odds. There doesn't happen to be any such thing as failure. But of course you all want to agree there's such a thing as failure so that you can have a reason to fail so you won't have to be cause. That's another thing. But there isn't any reason to fail. There's no excuse for any failure that ever occurred anyplace in history, except this: There was just not quite enough carry-through and push-through."

— L. Ron Hubbard

54. "Decision and time have a lot in common. When we have a clean, clear decision, we have clean, clear time. And when we have indecision, there is an unclarity about time."

— L. Ron Hubbard

55. "Democracy is the worst form of government you can have, because it's majority rule; and the government can tell you exactly what they want you to do, because the majority wants it."

— Aaron Russo

56. "Divine Light is moving us with grace into a new reality and towards the rebirth of your fully conscious potential."

— Sheldan Nidle

57. "Divine Wisdom doesn't need acceptance; the Light that shines with eternal tranquillity patiently awaits for the day in which it will be recognized and accepted."

— Max Heindel

58. "Do not pass by a man in need, for you may be the hand of God to him."

— Proverbs 3:27, In The Bible

59. "Do not send peacekeepers if there is no peace to keep."

— Peter Carrington

60. "Do the work others aren't willing to do, and you'll get the things others will never have."

— Bruce Van Horn

61. “Don’t be afraid to feel lost. If you want God to paint a new dream in your life, you will need to let him erase and clean everything else you have first. We can only paint something new on a white canvas. You can't paint a new life on a canvas that has been already painted, with beliefs, attachments, values and a certain self-image, all of which are unaligned with the dream you have set into motion by desire. God has to paint what is new on a white canvas; and that’s why you need to lose it all in order to have it all. And the more ambitious you are, the more often you will have to experience a restart, a new beginning, foreseeing the abandonment of the old within you. Your friends, your house, your job, and everything else that belongs to a fixed environment, belongs to a painting that you have dreamed once, but won't be part of the future you dream in your present state. It is very difficult to dream the new while inside the old, to recreate within what has been made, to rebuild without destroying, to recreate without breaking, to have the new without losing the old. The rules of this planet apply to building a chair as much as they apply to building a life.”

— Robin Sacredfire

62. “Don’t quit any battle, no matter how tiresome the struggle. Always start again, without rest, so that you may find the light.”

— Jan Van Rijckenborgh

63. “Don’t be content with what you earn, but be content with what you own. Don’t allow material things to define who you are.”

— Bo Sánchez

64. “Don’t be defined by the watch you use, the clothes you wear, and the car you drive. Be defined by your relationship with God.”

— Bo Sánchez

65. “Don’t be in such a hurry to condemn a person because he doesn’t do what you do, or think as you think or as fast. There was a time when you didn’t know what you know today.”

— Malcolm X

66. “Don’t desire to be liked or admired. Don’t give a damn. Because if you start giving a damn, you won’t be liked or admired. The only way to really be liked and admired is not to care whether you’re liked or admired and to act most any way you please. And you’ll be surprised how many people will like and admire you, but that isn’t why you act the way you please. You act the way you please and as you should because it’s honest to. See, it’s kind of a lie to be one thing and act like another just because it’s polite.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

67. “Don’t look on books as a sideline. They’re your front-line troops. They're a planet wide assault on the subconscious mind. No one wants a subconscious mind but a psychologist. So everyone else will be your friend. I’m not saying this just because I want books sold. No. I’m saying this because I want a better planet. Do you?”

— L. Ron Hubbard

68. "Don't make common what God has purified."

— Acts 10:15, In The Bible

69. "Don't think there is anything in this universe that is completely easy to do. There is nothing that would be totally easy to do that would be worth doing. There's always some hard work alongside of any worthwhile project. There's always some heartbreak and there's always upset. That's the way this universe is built. Take it in stride."

— L. Ron Hubbard

70. "Don't try to be perfect. There are no perfect personalities, even among the Sages. And you can also experience doing the best you can, and somebody will just hate you, basically. Like Christ said, 'they hate me for no reason'. Don't think that being a nice person is going to secure people liking you. There's no single being that is loved by everyone, including God. So just be true, inside. The most important discovery in the human kingdom is your essence."

— Mooji Hawaii

71. "Doublethink means the power of holding two contradictory beliefs in one's mind simultaneously and accepting both of them."

— George Orwell

72. "Dreaming is one of humanity's greatest gifts. It champions aspiration, spurs innovation, leads to change and propels us forward. In a world without dreams, there would be no adventure, no moon landing, no female CEOs, no civil rights. What a half-lived and tragic existence we would have. We should all dream big, and encourage others to do so, too."

— Richard Branson

73. "During our life, we often tell others or ourselves that, 'I know how I should behave, but I cannot do it. I know what is right, and I still do something else again and again. I am simply unable to change.' The point is that, it is in itself not sufficient to know how to behave properly. Knowledge and real comprehension are two different things. For a real change, thorough comprehension is required. We need to understand that in the background of our apparently unchangeable patterns of behavior, there are our mental wounds, acquired in the past. These mental wounds have by now sunk into the unconscious. Unlike the physical wounds on our body, these mental wounds never heal. The patterns of behavior fueled by our mental wounds are self-sustaining. For instance, we are apprehensive of our boss because (s)he talked us in a superior way in front of our colleagues. Then, after a while, the apprehension fades away, and we believe that our anger is gone. But our anger has not really vanished. For a while, it had been conscious, but then it sunk into the subconscious, to the depths of our soul. That is where it is waiting for its turn, to emerge to the surface again. It may not have to wait long, as when we return home from work, the behavior of our wife or children might trigger the re-appearance of anger. We supply new strength, new intensity to our wrath, sustain it, and it will re-surface again and again in the rest of our life. When we become angry about something or someone, we believe that the anger belongs to us and is a part of our Ego. We then try to find some excuse for our behavior. Our most common explanation is that our anger was caused by the other person, or that it was the only possible behavior in the situation concerned. In this way, we reject responsibility, blame it on our environment, we try to find a scapegoat to blame for our behavior which is unacceptable even for ourselves. In the first step, we realized that anger is caused by our mental injuries. The environment only provides a framework for that anger to charge itself with energy and break to the surface in us. We shall only be able to achieve a real change in that respect if we realize that our grief, unhappiness, jealousy or anger, and our behavior related to these emotions are almost always the consequences of some internal wound. We must, therefore, cease trying to find excuses for our behavior all the time. We must take responsibility for our anger or unhappiness, and be aware that those are the products of our mental injuries.”

— Frank M. Wanderer, PhD

74. “Economics are as simple as they are not obscured. And as confused as they are made to serve a selfish purpose. Any child can understand—and practice—the basic principles of economics. But grown men, huge with the stature of Government or Chain Banks, find it very useful to obscure the subject beyond all comprehension. The things that are done in the name of 'economic necessity' would shame Satan. For they are done by the selfish few to deny the many. Economics easily evolve into the science of making people miserable. Nine-tenths of life are economic. The remaining one-tenth is social-political. If there is this fruitful source of suppression loose upon the world and if it makes people unhappy, then it is a legitimate field for comment in Scientology as it must form a large 'misunderstood' in our daily lives. Let us see how involved it can be made. If Mankind increases in number and if property and goods increase, then money must also increase unless we are to arrive at a point where none can buy. Yet money is pegged to a metal of which there is just so much and no more—gold. So if Man's expansion is to be checked, it will be checked simply by running out of this metal. And aside from art uses and superstition, the metal, gold, has almost no practical value. Iron is far more useful, but as it is one of the most common elements about, it would not serve the purpose of suppression of Man's growth. Money is a symbol that people are confident can be converted into goods.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

75. “Electric power is everywhere present in unlimited quantities and can drive the world's machinery without the need for coal, oil, gas, or any other of the common fuels.”

— Nikola Tesla

76. “Electronic music is a general future trend for music, but it is not what many people think of when they think of "computer music". It is not a series of beeps and hums. It is going to create new musical scales and sounds while giving us everyday sounds as music.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

77. “Energy, whether in the form of a mental image, a body, a tree or a rock, is alike the by-product of life. There is no faintest difference, save only density and wavelength, between the space you behold around you with your physical eyes and the spaces and forms you see when you close them and behold a mental image. These things, alike, are energies, and obey the various laws of energy. Here, then, we have a unit or a quality capable of bringing into being quantities such as spaces, energies, masses and time, capable of changing and controlling these masses and energies, capable of adding to them or subtracting from them.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

78. "Every authentic spiritual path has some mention or teaching around forgiveness."

— Michael Beckwith

79. "Every since we were kids, we've categorized people, put them into different groups. The popular kids are always picked first. In general, our social structure flows from the bottom up, kind of like a pyramid. With the wide part of the pyramid representing the not so cool people, because there are so many of them. The top represents a few, rare, really cool people."

— Jon Sinn

80. "Every time we experience pain or suffering, it is God's feedback system telling us that we need to learn something about love."

— Alan John Miller

81. "Everyone has inside of him a piece of good news. The good news is that you don't know how great you can be, how much you can love, what you can accomplish, and what your potential is. Those who have courage and faith shall never perish in misery."

— Anne Frank

82. "Everyone is trying to accomplish something big, not realizing that life is made up of little things."

— Frank A. Clark

83. "Everything that is moved, is moved in something and through something, which is bigger than what was moved. So what causes the movement is stronger than what is moved."

— Hermes Trismegistos

84. "Faith is the ability to see the invisible."

— Bob Proctor

85. "Faith is to believe what you do not see. The reward of this faith is to see what you believe."

— Saint Augustine

86. "Fantasy detached from reason creates monsters but combined with it is the mother of all arts."

— Francisco Goya

87. "Fate is what life brings you. Destiny is what you do with it."

— Michael Bernard Beckwith

88. "Fear is a sickness. It will crawl into the soul of anyone who engages it."

— Flint Sky

89. "Few men are willing to brave the disapproval of their fellows, the censure of their colleagues, the wrath of their society. Moral courage is a rarer commodity than bravery in battle or great intelligence. Yet it is the one essential, vital quality for those who seek to change a world which yields most painfully to change."

— Robert F. Kennedy

90. "First they came for the Socialists, and I did not speak out because I was not a Socialist. Then they came for the Trade Unionists, and I did not speak out because I was not a Trade Unionist. Then they came for the Jews, and I did not speak out because I was not a Jew. Then they came for me and there was no one left to speak for me."

— Martin Niemöller

91. "Fools think that the ways of the world are wise; but the wise know where the ways of the world lead."

— Valluvar

92. "For every negative remark you make on another person, you should add three positive ones, from which at least one is a suggestion that can correct what you observe, as no house of wood can be built by looking at and complaining about the ugly trees, no society can evolve based on what the dead did not do, no painter can paint while looking at the paintings he dislikes, and no knowledge can be acquired by the mind that refuses to empty itself first."

— Robin Sacredfire

93. "For how much effort are you willing to take responsibility? Because you will get as a counter-effort any effort you don't take under your responsibility."

— L. Ron Hubbard

94. "Force yourself to smile and you'll soon stop frowning. Force yourself to laugh and you'll soon find something to laugh about. Wax enthusiastic and you'll very soon feel so. A being causes his own feelings. The greatest joy there is in life is creating. Splurge on it!"

— L. Ron Hubbard

95. "Freedom is for honest people. No man who is not himself honest can be free. He is his own trap."

— L. Ron Hubbard

96. "Freedom lies beyond barriers. And as soon as you start to go in the direction of freedom, you'll find some barriers. And the trick is not to stand around and look at these wonderful barriers inside the head. Let's find out how able a fellow can be and how free he can be. The abler we can make a person, the freer he is. And so we are able, if we pursue ability. If we pursue disability, we are disabled."

— L. Ron Hubbard

97. "Freethinkers will always seem crazy to those who don't take time to research. Never apologize for evolving past people's comfort zone."

— David Wolfe

98. "Friends are all souls that we've known in other lives. We're drawn to each other. That's how I feel about friends. Even if I have only known them for a day, it doesn't matter. I'm not going to wait till I have known them two years, because anyway we have met somewhere before, you know."

— George Harrison

99. "From the beginning of this millennium all religions will become reconciled in the mystery of Rosicrucianism."

— Dr. Rudolf Steiner

100. "Full responsibility is not fault, it is recognition of being cause."

— L. Ron Hubbard

101. "Future is the creation of a future illusion and the working toward that illusion to make it a reality."

— L. Ron Hubbard

102. "God is a Producer. He says, "Make the movie of your life beautiful! Here's the budget."

— Bo Sánchez

103. "God is still everywhere in nature. Wherever a heart beats with love, wherever faith and reason utter their oracles, there is God, as formerly in the hearts of seers and prophets. No soil on earth is so holy as the good man's heart."

— Albert Pike

104. "God is the highest goal of human knowledge. We can know nothing of Him beyond His active manifestation within ourselves."

— Catharose de Petri

105. "God judges people based on their heart and their actions."

— Ruqsana Begum

106. "Good sense is to live fast, live beautifully and live dangerously. People who go around all the time figuring out how to survive longer are wasting randomness: They're wasting motion, wasting action, wasting adventure. What an enemy of beauty that concept is. The dramatization that the only good paintings there are, are at least three hundred years old is another symptom of this, you see? 'All good paintings are old paintings'. This is some kind of an effort on the part of an artist who is more sadistic than I care to have around, or an art critic, to make people recognize that it can only be beautiful if it's old or something. This is completely in reverse to the fact of the case."

— L. Ron Hubbard

107. "Great men seem never so scarce as when they are most needed, and small men never so bold to insist on infesting place, as when mediocrity and incapable pretense and sophomoric greenness, and showy and sprightly incompetency are most dangerous. To seek to subjugate the will of others and take the soul captive, because it is the exercise of the highest power, seems to be the highest object of human ambition."

— Albert Pike

108. "He has life in his hands and passes it to a stranger; and that person is hoisted to safety and a helicopter takes her away and it comes back; and the same scene repeats itself four more times; and every time, he's got his hands on a rope ladder, he is this close to save his life and every single time he passes it to a stranger, not his wife, not his daughter, not his best friend, a stranger. And when the helicopter came back for him, he had succumbed to fatigue and drowned. His name was Orland Williams. I'm not asking you to be Reagan. I'm not asking you to be Lincoln. I'm just asking you to live a quiet life of conviction and virtue and actually live out what you profess to believe, and if you can do that, you'll be a leader."

— Trey Gowdy

109. "He has no name or form; yet he is the source of all the elements - space, air, fire, water and earth - from which all forms are made."

— Mundaka Upanishad

110. "He that looketh only upon that which is carried upward as fire, that which is carried downward as earth, that which is moist as water, and that which bloweth or is subject to blast as air, how can he sensibly understand that which is neither hard, nor moist, nor tangible, nor perspicuous? Seeing it is only understood in power and operation."

— Hermes Trismegistus

111. "He who asks a question is a fool for a minute. He who does not remains a fool forever."

— Buddha

112. "He who believes is strong; he who doubts is weak. Strong convictions precede great actions."

— James Freeman Clarke

113. "His head will be very heavy from the great amount of knowledge that he has acquired, yet it will be a useless knowledge, because its value is not based on the value of the spirit, and is not uniform with the laws of the Creation but is based only on human laws."

— Talmud of Immanuel

114. "How do we find ourselves when awakening? It is hard what I am about to tell you: When one awakens to the truth, he finds that those he considered similar, that before he considered to be normal people, he finds that they are not normal, but abnormal. But this only happens when one awakens. When one is asleep, he believes to be normal and thinks that everyone else around him is normal too. However, when one awakens, with profound pain he finds himself inside an asylum, in which everyone is insane. And yet, one is also insane if thinking he is sane. For when a crazy person accepts that he is crazy, this is an unequivocal sign that he is healing. When we disintegrate the ego, the conscience awakens and the mind becomes normal. And only then we realize that we were in a madhouse, or that we are still in a madhouse.”

— Samael Aun Weor

115. “How much can Man conquer? He loses if he conquers Man. He wins if he conquers his own fears and conquers he stars.”

— L. Ron Hubbard

116. “Humanity seeks the path of self destruction through its abnormal intellectualism and formation of rational habits.”

— Jan van Rijckenborgh

117. “I am a gorilla, I am one with the flowers, the animals and nature. And I love people as much as I love the planet. But people are stupid and they should care more about the planet. They must protect it.” - Koko

118. “I am not a product of my circumstances. I am a product of my decisions.”

— Stephen Covey

119. I believe that the human race has developed a form of collective schizophrenia, in which we are not only the slaves of this imposed thought behavior, but we are also the police force of it.”

— David Icke

120. “I choose you, one from a thousand and two from ten thousand, and they shall stand as a single unity. Whoever has ears, let him hear, for there is light within a person of light, and it illuminates on the entire world. And when one doesn't shine, there is darkness.”

— Jesus, In The Gospel of Thomas

121. “I do not believe in going half-way in anything. You either go all the way, or you don't do it.”

— Bob Proctor

122. “I do not believe that any of us have dreams that were not given to us.”

— Les Brown

123. “I don't want to live in a world where there's no privacy, and therefore no room for intellectual exploration and creativity.”

— Edward Snowden

124. “I had a very special teacher in high school many years ago whose husband unexpectedly died suddenly of a heart attack. About a week after his death, she shared some of her insight with a classroom of students. As the late afternoon sunlight came streaming in through the classroom windows and the class was nearly over, she moved a few things aside on the edge of her desk and sat down there. With a gentle look of
