

The answer to everything

Forward

The first and foremost above all queer realities while searching for higher knowledge is that one is searching not only for the inexplicable but in many cases, the nonexistent. How to venture into a distant world or another dimension that has no vocabulary will be undeniably met with an injection of reason created by the investigator. Those who want to attain higher realms of reality and those seeking knowledge that is meant to be unreachable (even unattainable) will eventually acknowledge some images, sensations, and emotions discovered carry a blank name tag as if they didn't exist or don't belong in our realm. These concepts that come from outer dimensions or somewhere else carry great sensation yet remain a complete mystery as if they do not belong in this universe, but for one reason or other have stuck a ugly head into our universe for us to catch a glimpse of an unexplainable connection. These strange occurrences are very hard to describe even though they sometimes greet us in the form of a gift. Extrasensory perception is a gift. Being able to disappear, read minds and see into the future are all gifts.

The great divide, material, spiritual and or both united have a property of being equally combined also included in spirituality that realm of reality of nonexistence, or is it just a heavy perception deficiency? Where one hears footsteps on the second floor, when investigated, finds an empty hallway or room. We are living an existence where betting on one side or the other will satisfy our curiosity and even if we are right or wrong, for the time being are comforted the truth exists somewhere. In that moment in time, without fear we believe living has been achieved. Our questions were answered even if only partially and sigh in relief there was no ghost in the hallway. Material and spiritual is the glue that drips down the funnel into a world where 50/50 meets. To learn the ways of life and higher knowledge it would seem including anything, but those two subjects would be pointless. Hence this world is filled with scientists, religionists and the philosophers view. A two-sided coin well spent still buys you that needed slice of comfort. Surprisingly both sides, the spiritual and physical when individually investigated lead to one or the other's existence. Yet if we were to measure that existence in a large bucket they would barely fill a minute portion. There is much more.

The assumption that consciousness controls the physical by thought leaves us to point out that perhaps it is possible to move objects by this process because of the simple notion we are doing it already with the bodies we maneuver. If we are the essence of those things not within this universe, as in spirit juice, no one knows how this connection works in today's science because mind over matter breaks the laws of physics. But perhaps this thought has a flaw while we can do it with our bodies everything else from bending spoons to reading minds is off limits. It makes absolutely no sense to have one without the other unless our first assumption "mind over matter" is incorrect. The answer lies within how life learned perception and a vast host of other things via sensing motion through frequency. This is how life developed naturally reaching out or within, by any means possible, to gain a greater understanding of the answer to everything.

A helpful note before continuing on:

Our visual perception reveals fifty percent or less of anythings existence. All objects, events and scenery reveal to our dismay may contain fifty percent of the reality. It is no secret the 3-dimensional universe hides 50 percent of the visual experience naturally within its design. The other 50 percent is recreated either by lies, imagination or an assumption.

INDEX

1. Creation and the Infinite Universe
2. Gravity
3. Frequency
4. Precognitive vs Suspicious and Superstitious
5. Spaceships
6. Resonance Transfer
7. Time and Death
8. Pyramids
9. Why Does Man Have Nipples?
10. Dream State
11. The Flaw
12. The Ethereal Events of Life
13. The Secret Answer to Life
14. Everything is a Delivery System

It would be unfair to reveal a beyond normal understanding of everything without beginning with reality.

Reality has three components or parts. The first component of reality is everything that exists and that it exists without conscious creative expression. All that is or was before higher life had the idea it needed to change and produce things to prevent scarcity. All the stars, planets, mountains and oceans would be an example. The second part of reality is all what life has created from ideas inherent as a continuation or deterioration of the species. Everything non-human or non-life can be excluded. Education, finger painting and tractors would be an example of this reality. The third part of reality is everything that can't be understood, changed or known. This would include how life originated on Earth or what happens after you die. The missing knowledge, negative, false or nonexistent also belongs in this reality.

Other than language the one thing that separates higher life from all species is the amount of its creation manifestation. To take an idea from the mind and mold it into a three-dimensional portrayal of thought in a conscious continuous fashion.

But what humans don't and can't do is create something from nothing separate from the mind. That would break the laws of physics. We cannot think of a car and decide without an event of assembly then poof within seconds have a vehicle ready to drive off. We cannot make a spoon appear from thin air or make a clock stop unless we pull the plug. Yet there is something poking at us deep within our genetic DNA somewhere telling us it is possible to move matter with thought.

Many artists would argue the point that improvisation is a create from nothing form and is proof that art can be spontaneously brought about into existence. What they fail to tell you is the spontaneous creation from nothing isn't from nothing at all but carries with it all the experience of one's past. Without that there can be no base to draw from. The painter still paints with a brush, paint and canvas. However, and again let's point out there are new or fresh ideas that can be brought into existence via the use of already existent materials molded into something that appears to be brand new. A design or a change of a design gives us the freedom to be creative enough not to be repetitious and boring.

For the universe scientists, they have moved God out of the picture of creation and replaced him with another creation manifestation. The notion that the universe had to be created stems either by its better not to offend completely but to include a partial agreement. They are stating the universe was created its just God had nothing to do with it. Nevertheless, one can't deny The Big Bang is a creation story replacing another creation story.

There are other notions, investigations and probabilities where theories don't break down. They can be used to better enhance our understanding of this universe and point us in a direction where most of the parts lead us to a whole. Remember 50 percent of our view is inherently obstructed.

THE UNIVERSE WAS NEVER CREATED, NOR CAN IT BE MADE TO DISAPPEAR. However, feel free to give your fellow man the appearance you did those things. There is a big difference.

If Higher knowledge could prove that statement false then everyone of us could undo the universe, everything, all time, all space, all life, all experience into absolute zero. The difference between creation and the infinite universe is one of estimation. If we can appear to accurately measure duration between process's and combine a relative, we can make the answer finite. The idea that the universe was never created is much more of a complex idea internally yet offers practical even simplistic answers to lifelong questions. And to think just because humans can create and in turn think the universe was created, is the second most self-centered notion ever devised.

When I was a kid there was this Berger joint near my Jr. High school called Lenny's many of us hung out there. Equipped with the best cherry chocolate sodas, burgers and pinball machines. One Sunday I found myself in town for no reason other than to be exploratory. Lenny's was closed and found me enjoying the day walking around. I met up with two friends and we were walking by a service ally way behind a strip of stores. We noticed some kids down at the end of the ally and decided to head on down. The ally had a slope in the grade which came to a dead end. The wall to the right of the ally that paralleled the stores to the left sloped upwards that ended to a Hight of 10 to 12 feet.

When we got to the end of the ally where these kids our age, we noticed they had broken into one of the stores though a back door that opened into the ally. They were robing the place. When I grew up, Sunday was a day of rest which meant none of the stores were open and these kids mysteriously turned into little fox's raiding the hen house.

Almost immediately when the last kid came out of the store I noticed two cops walking down the ally. There was no where to run unless you were quick enough to run past them. Here we were 6 kids all saying to themselves we're caught. Except me. I had stepped back up against the wall, remained still and silent holding my breath while saying to myself I was not part of this robbery. I will not get caught! The police came down to round up the kids. One cop had walked up in front of me so close I could see the hairs on the back of his neck and smelled his cologne. The cop was inches away. I could see one of my friends with a question mark on his face, he could not believe, as he was being escorted out I did not get caught. Not knowing then I had stepped into the third part of reality, I was truly invisible that day but without the disappearing act.

There is good reason for humans to be stuck reinventing themselves with creation. The continuation of created events keeps the clock ticking and gives purpose to an otherwise lifeless, meaningless existence. Here is an additional great divide in science. The Big Bang was coined by the scientist Fred Hoyle who disagreed with the big bang theory. Here is a list from a scientist perspective, IUT - Infinite Universe Theory vs. BBT - Big Bang Theory.

Characteristics	Big Bang Theory	Infinite Universe Theory
Acronym	BBT	IUT
CRITICAL ASSUMPTIONS
	finity	infinity
	finite universal causality	infinite universal causality
	creation	conservation
	separability	inseparability
MATHEMATICS
Mathematical compliance	full	partial
Time	matter	motion
Number of dimensions	4 to 13	3
String theory legitimate?	yes	no
SPACE
Empty?	yes	no
Microwave background evidence	proves BBT	proves ether
Nonexistence possible?	yes	no
LIGHT
Character	wave-particle	wave
Light medium	none	ether
Is there an ethersphere?	no	yes
Solar light refraction	curved spacetime	ethersphere
Galactic redshift (universal)	Doppler Effect	absorption
Expansion?	yes	no
GRAVITATION
Mechanism	pull	push
Gravitational waves possible?	yes	yes
COSMOLOGY
Universe had an origin?	yes	no
Cosmogony legitimate?	yes	no
Worldview	systems philosophy	univironmental determinism
Mechanism of evolution	neo-Darwinism	univironmental determinism

Gravity

2

Gravity is the single most cruel, unadulterated theory hogwash, mis aligned, mis calculated, quasi construed, Top Secret, taken for granted, the littlest known about subject the universe has ever devised. From the effects of expansion, to other dimensions, pulling, pushing, gravity waves, space time, gravitons and particle accelerators no one individual or group has come up with a one (anti Black Box Theory) revelation to what it is.

However, there are a few things we know about it and these properties have opened a few doors to experimentation with partial access listed below.

Drop any two objects or more that weigh differently from a predetermined height will arrive on the ground at the same time. Atmosphere excluded. Gravity does not differentiate between the heavier or lighter object it affects them equally. This rule changes when a connection with the Earth is made. Two separate weights act differently under a measure apparatus such as a scale when on the ground.

Any liquid dropped or molten metal that falls from a designated height of several hundred feet will take the shape of a perfect sphere. No spaghettification induced affects.

Plants that are grown in zero gravity with sunlight grow in a spherical shape or spiral and do not grow towards the sun.

On Earth plant appendages grow facing up not down. This is an important observation as sun light is not the reason for this type of growth.

There are many other clues that will astonish even the unscientific and scientific alike.

I became interested in gravity when I encountered my first UFO. It hovered 15 or so feet above the ground effortlessly with zero sound. Seeing this at close distance, made it become perfectly clear that objects did not need wings to be in the sky as in conventional craft. There was a knowledge that made this craft hover in space and that technology at the time was alien to us and still is.

What I do know is at least one science community will lie about programs relating to proving theories correct about gravity for the continuance of grant money or to hide the fact the theories they teach are world excepted and established but aren't correct.

Gravity Probe B was such an example. If it was the latter, then conspiracies of a large order are under way and the Top-Secret marker is at play.

Logical conclusions and causality have not penetrated our way of description because other known science fields cannot describe or contribute any explanations. If we go with one school of thought, there is another school to argue a counter point. What is it about gravity that has higher knowledge for us to view? The very idea that gravity has shaped our physical structure of bone, yet it is taken for granted by every ordinary Joe who loves to lift weights, will never give it that much thought. How one subject has that much influence on growth yet throughout our whole life never knowing what, how and where that influence came from. The perfect example of: "It just Is" tells us along with the subject of time travel it's better to leave it alone. As much as we must leave it alone may very well be because gravity is a very strange thing, a thing that resides in the third part of reality, stranger than science fiction and yet to explain it in terms of the size of a mass is the reason for it, is even more strange. Our conclusions about gravity have produced nothing except a continuing wonder of what it is. That's right, if we let go of a locomotive and an apple at the same time they arrive meeting the earth with equivalent speed. All one needs to do is accurately describe point one and the reasons gravity effects two different weights while on the ground while gravity does not differentiate those same weights while falling? And as we have pointed out flaws before there must be a flaw in that question. Perhaps the flaw is falling. The objects are not falling and that would be the reason why the two different weighted objects act the same. We assume they are falling and so never make the connection that the two separate observations are not equivalent with one another. These two observations do not meet eye to eye and so we are willing to look the other way until someone like me points out we have some higher knowledge knocking at our door. The answer, though hard for any normal human to digest: THE OBJECTS ARE NOT FALLING! And as preposterous as that statement is, it must be true. If we decide the objects are not falling, then we must consider these two observations are very different in form and then realize there are completely two separate sets of phenomena at play. We find two reactions to two different and may I add separate problems. Hence when we separate these observations we must be able to explain how they are possible but do it individually. The only explanation to the first observation, if the objects are not falling then the ground or Earth is moving toward the objects. That would or could be the only result and if that is the case the Earth is moving outward very rapidly without our knowledge or visual experience. Remember we can see it but only 50 percent of the other side. Our minds are programmed to see the apparent falling objects, but it is not hard to do the reverse and imagine the earth is approaching the objects. This effect of an outward motion of Earth would also explain how the two different waited objects behave differently while there is a connection on the ground.

A = Point of view RP = Reference point D = Distance

Frequency

3

This is a large subject. The subject is as large as the universe. That is pretty dam large. We could go on forever and indulge ourselves with fascination on measuring the slightest curve of a wave. But the idea of this book is to give the reader an understanding of higher intelligence. We will start with how life developed the 5 senses using, delivering and detecting motion or frequency. This subject is the essence, heartbeat of all nature, mechanical, electrical, chemical and nuclear within a pliable substance.

From the vibration of an earth quake to the vibration of a violin string. Once the observation that all things vibrate to induce an effect, we can channel, mimic, those vibrations to suit our needs. The five human senses are incredible delivery systems in sensing or detecting outer frequency's while simultaneously obtaining information about the universe we live. We have outgrown our biological senses, which doesn't make them any less important or valuable in that we have created apparatuses such as telescopes and particle receptors to enhance our knowledge of space, while these things are foreign to biology, they have greatly increased our understanding. Humans are experts in creating the tools that generate additional and that require expanded questions about higher knowledge, from simple to the more difficult.

As a younger child I always enjoyed being rocked. That back and forth motion was comforting and that feeling never has dissipated even till now. We are programmed while ingrained with motion from the moment we are born. Though not outwardly sensed a link must exist to steady a minuet wobble in the earth, like our bio time clock detects time, something within ourselves detects the speed of the earth around the sun. Motion is key in every aspect of our events. We have become experts in repetition. I am sensitive to motion, especially visiting Highrise hotels or tall buildings. If I stay in them for long periods of time when exiting and with two feet planted firmly on the sidewalk, I'll feel as if I am moving back and forth. This occurs because my body stabilized during the swaying of the building. It automatically adapted to its movement and I spatially returned to normal. But now again my body needs to stabilize from the motion of the building while outside.

With every Ocean wave slapping on the shore line there is comfort in the sound water produces. Where water is the waves medium, another medium the "air" allows the pleasant wish sound to reach our ears. It is very hypnotic. A motion repeated like this can put you to sleep very rapidly. We must realize a medium must exist, for any type of wave or energy to travel at any distance. Our ears detect this vibration moving at 700 MPH through air and we can discern tone, pitch and loudness with ease. The ear is an amazing yet simple structure we all take for granted. And not unlike water or air, light must have a medium to travel any distance as well. But here we must end and start a venture into the world of reading minds or sensing the spirit realm. Scientifically we know this is impossible but only if a medium like an ether does not exist. With an ether, reading minds, sensing ghosts and other extra sensory perceptions would be a definite possibility. And this ether would be so thin and vague to the mind it would remain undetected by the best experts. Dark Matter may turn out to be the ether everyone is looking for. The conscious mind may be the only tool to detect this ether! The idea here is once a medium is found we will learn the frequency patterns and use energy to be sent across vast distances. Once we get the idea a medium like an ether exists for humans to use we can take advantage of its usefulness and help bring about a higher knowledge. And like the use of our other senses develop perceptions to gain an answer to everything.

Precognitive vs suspicious or superstitious 4

As we have touched a little on the 50 percent sight enigma, we haven't investigated why humans don't have eyes on the top, on its sides or in the back of the head. Why just in the front stereo view? If we are the higher intelligent species on earth why barely one third degree of clean sight in a 360-degree position? Efficiency is the answer but only if a medium exists that contributes to sensing those areas not directly seen. If we could sense or detect someone following or watching us and utilizing this medium by keeping track of their movements from behind without sight, this would be a great asset. Sensing their frequency through a medium would be assumed while never questioning its origin. Some call this the third eye. It is a sense beyond using our normal 5 senses. I am proposing that this sense exists but only because there is an ether which makes sensing these types of things possible. An electrical impulse or wave coming from the stalker which only exists and can only be detected because of this medium.

The criminal knows how to hide his misdeeds by not bringing up the memories that could trigger a release of a wave in this medium and in this case, making us become suspicious. We test all outward signals apart from this detection but in our gut, we know something is up. We are sensing something with our third eye. Despite the outward manifestations and realities telling us this guy is innocent, pointing to innocence, yet we can feel something else.

While we rub the little rabbits' foot for luck we can get this whole business wrong. It may be skill, or people are hard wired where the rest of us have broken connections. If it can be turned off like a switch willingly this third eye, would make the notion that subconsciously we are willing to be complacent. And that means we KNOW that all this is going on but purposely hide the fact.

I think all of us have sensed a phone call coming or an accident about to happen. Even a loved one who died thousands of miles away can be detected. If these senses exist it is only because of a medium that is in-between the sender and the receiver. There must be a substance, in this case a medium the message can travel on and distance is not a barrier.

But without delving into the questionable, analytically we can absorb mountains of information and structurally affirm end results. This data ultimately predicts our future under any given set of circumstances if we have corrected or truthful information. Without correct information our guess is at best and only worthy of wisdom and experience.

In 1848 the Jones living in the Appalachians were reminded from previous experience their hearing and smell allowed them to shelter soldiers with medical help. Faint pops and the rolling fragrance of gunpowder smoke coming down the mountain side made it all too clear of what was to come the following day. This information was quickly acted on and they saved many lives. Being prepared is a good thing. The fact is the Jones family only used two senses and experience to guide them into the future. The medium used here was the air.

Much of what we do today is a combination and use of our physical senses with our third eye. This story may have been different if the wife had a dream about the war and then she acted on the dream before the aroma of gunpowder. They may have ventured over the mountain to see and have been killed but more likely the feeling of fear via another type of medium would have kept them from going. I can honestly say that I have used my intuition on many occasions sensing ugliness or evil through this medium with my third eye and have lived to tell the story. A few times I ignored it and escaped by the skin of my teeth. It is with good measure to take heed of this sixth sense especially if a feeling of life and death are around the corner.

I was working outside of Chicago when one evening a worker friend asked if I wanted to go out for the evening to drink and play pool. We did this often as in most on the road workers can get board staying at mostly cheesy motels. There is not much to do except get back from work, take a shower, head out to eat and play some pool while getting drunk. When having all this fun after work one never realizes these places can be rather dangerous. This time I was asked repeatedly if I was heading out to this place we would visit almost every other night. Except this evening I just said no, and I have to say for no other reason, but I didn't feel right about going out. Something was telling me not to go.

I woke up about 1:30 In the morning when my work partner stumbled around holding his belly. I asked what's the matter and he said a fight broke out in the bar and all he wanted to do is go to sleep. The problem was he had blood all over his hands and shirt and I asked him where did that come from? He said he was stabbed during the fight. I said WHAT? Then I proceeded to do everything in my power to get him to a hospital. We arrived within 20 minutes and during that time trying to keep him awake. The shank he was stabbed with was about a half inch wide and 8 inches long. How do I know this as I witnessed the doctor push a stick into his gut and the stick kept going in. The wound went sideways across his belly. If the shank had penetrated his gut or an organ the hospital visit would have been very different.

What was telling me not to go? This is a very important question because many instances this has occurred throughout my life and it should be important to know what is keeping my ass safe from danger. I could have said an angel is watching over me, but I am not that proud to say an angel wouldn't even notice me being around. However, it could be the medium helping along those electrical impulses that carry with them the future and I just happened to catch a glimpse with my third eye. I can't explain it any other way.

Spaceships

5

What is a spaceship? It is simply a vehicle that travels through space. Just because your car has wheels makes it no less a spaceship. Those that travel in an orbit of earth or reach other planets does not make them more special. Your 67 Schwinn stingray bike with monkey handle bars and banana seat parked in your garage makes it no less a space vehicle. However different power configurations and designs can make the difference while traveling in speeds excess of thirty thousand MPH. We are going to start with a simple inertia drive. The drive is mechanical in nature, but its design will surely give a run for its money. It is circular in shape with heavy weights attached to the ends of extended arms from its center. These arms when fully extended and equally spaced rotating at thousands of MPH, Reduced to MPS create an immense amount of outward force. The engine spinning the weights can be magnetically powered by a nuclear reactor. In addition, there is a center engine separate from the main power and its purpose is to minutely retract one or more of the arms inward while they are in motion. The counter weight during this inward retraction propels the spacecraft in the opposite direction. Releasing the weight again back into position propels it the other way. It may also be called a harmonic drive because one needs to know the speed or frequency in revolutions this drive reacts best too. Different size weights with changes in diameter size will react in accordance of those specifications. Here is a drive unfamiliar to the rocket scientists. There is no propellant nor do you need large containers to carry the propellant. It will be an engineer's nightmare designing a structure that will withstand enormous pressures but its simplicity and maneuverability in any direction will undoubtedly be a winner. Granted the design I am giving here is in two dimensions. Side to Side and front to back. How you design yours to go up and down, I'll leave that up to you. The gyroscopic force alone makes it one the sturdiest structures unable to tip or tilt. It is also a very deadly craft if not designed properly. Those weights traveling at Mock 10 if detached will penetrate anything in its path. Also, one must consider, the extremely high G forces if the weights are snapped back into position to quickly. A slow motion to extend the arms is recommended. We need to start thinking in different dimensions if we are to gain higher knowledge. Limiting travel by way of the gas engine is not moving forward in idea terms even as far as the betterment of mankind. I can tell you this, I have a good feeling someone will be interested enough to try and build the dam thing. I have always known it is smarter to let things work for you. In this design the energy these weights produce works for you and I think you will be amazed how well they will.

10 reasons why spaceships visit Earth:

1. The occupants after traveling twenty light years need to relieve themselves and if possible find a rare akiwano to eat. A akiwano is a fruit similar to ajumbau. A aumbau is a fruit from planet Nemtar.
2. It gets awful lonely out there and some aliens just want to find someone to talk to.

Thank You for previewing this eBook

You can read the full version of this eBook in different formats:

- HTML (Free /Available to everyone)
- PDF / TXT (Available to V.I.P. members. Free Standard members can access up to 5 PDF/TXT eBooks per month each month)
- Epub & Mobipocket (Exclusive to V.I.P. members)

To download this full book, simply select the format you desire below

